

ARRANGER[®]

I am a flexible and organized conductor who is able to configure a vast amount of information into a clear and productive plan.

Academic Life

- Use a planner to keep track of all your personal and academic activities.
- Read all of the directions to a test first, and then allot enough time to each section.
- Be prepared to stop working on one project when another needs more immediate attention.

Career Goals

- Explore a variety of careers, knowing it will all fall into place at the right time.
- Environments that allow you to juggle people and their varied schedules allows you to thrive.
- You work exceedingly well with others, so look for jobs that allow your personable nature to thrive.

Decision Making

- Utilize your predilection for planning and write down your strategy.
- Remember, you cannot always make decisions alone. Be sure to communicate your thought process when making collaborations.
- Make sure you don't bite off more than you can chew, as you can only keep track of so much at once.

Leadership Tips

- You intuitively see how different people can work together, so use that to your advantage when planning projects.
- Give people time to understand your unique way of doing things, so they can see how your mental juggling works.
- You're resourceful, so encourage others to come to you with tricky problems.

Relationship Building

- Share your "what if?" thinking with those around you. It will make them more confident in themselves and you.
- People will come to rely on you when it comes to organizing events, so don't get too burned out by their requests.
- Help those around you set goals and then show them the path to success, which they may miss.

Extracurriculars

- Organize a group project and place your peers in the positions where they'll be most effective.
- Mix non-academic projects, appointments, and meetings into your week for variety.
- Take on the role of director. Try coaching or organizing a community play.
