

MAXIMIZER[®]

I am productive and constantly striving for excellence, while being able to recognize and capitalize on the strengths of others.

Academic Life

- Join the student government in order to improve campus life.
- Choose classes that allow you to challenge yourself.
- Find professors who are the best in their field.

Career Goals

- Interview the most successful people in a field in which you are highly interested.
- You will thrive in an environment in which collaborative work is valued.
- Choose a workplace that is known to be one of the best in its field, to give you a strong sense of pride.

Decision Making

- Look to successful mentors and friends for wisdom and advice.
- Interview prosperous individuals who can point you in the right directions.
- Engage a restorative person to help with problem solving.

Leadership Tips

- A natural-born leader, you excel in roles that allow you to inspire successful performances from those you manage.
- Converse with leaders in your field and absorb their wisdom to further your own skills.
- Become a mentor for someone who wants to improve themselves and their circumstances.

Relationship Building

- You are drawn to those with wisdom and may benefit from friends older than yourself.
- Take on a mentoring role that will allow you to help others to succeed.
- Encourage the strengths of the people in your life.

Extracurriculars

- Join a team (sports, etc.) that allows you to bring out the best in others.
- Explore new hobbies to test the application of your maximizer strength.
- Read autobiographies of successful people that you admire.
